

GRAIN COMPANY REPORTS GOOD YEAR

SCHOOL REORGANIZATION HEARINGS AT FRANKFORT, MOKENA, 5TH, 6TH

ABOUT THIS — AND — ABOUT THAT

By OLIVER GEDEIST

It's A Fake

The racial equality legislation proposed by Mr. Truman and enthusiastically espoused by some of the GOP membership has no honest back of it. On both sides the hope is that the program will secure a harvest of votes next November. To determine the insincerity of the protestation of desire for full equality between the races, check and see how many of the members of our national legislature bought homes or live in Negro communities.

Unhappy Situation

It is an unhappy situation with which we are confronted. In fact, our colored friends are entitled to all privileges that belong to us. But there is predicated a fact that should not be overlooked: whites do not have FULL equal opportunities. We each must earn the privilege of equal opportunity with our fellows, of whatever color, by our way of living. That goes for our Chinese friends, and friends of other nationalities who generally are ignored by us Occidentals of our particular strain. We do not rush to the average Mexican neighbor with great gusto.

In the South

In the South, there is the problem of habit. It is an unhappy problem. It is a problem that has existed through thousands of centuries. In the South, there is increasing recognition of the rights of the Negro. An illustration: a few years ago I went, after an absence of several years, back to my South Carolina home. I stopped in a soda fountain in the largest theater building, and soon found by my side a young Negro couple. In a drug store, the largest in the town of 6,000, I found the same thing. No questions were asked. Understand, this is not proof that Negroes are accepted as "equals" by the whites. But on the same trip an attorney and his wife invited a Negro man, with whom I played as a small boy, to their home on a Sunday afternoon to meet me. We had a pleasant hour's visit, with refreshments served. My host was a judge as was his father before him. More, they belonged to what people used to call "the old southern aristocracy."

What To Do

If leaders of Negroes would spend more of their time in leading their people into depending upon themselves, opening their own businesses and professions, not swashbuckling, but in their conduct accepting their rights while respecting the rights of others, it would not be long before the barriers would be down. Political sharpshooters in both races are a handicap to better understanding. Of course, we of the white race should give help and then along with time and reasonable persistence things would be better.

Strife! Always Strife!

There has always been strife between races. There is strife between Jew and Christian. Ingrained objection to others' racial habits are hard to overcome. That is illustrated in India. That is also illustrated in Palestine, where both races-religions are of the same origin.

Eliminate Hate

If we could eliminate the natural hatreds between peoples we could get along with our neighbors, whatever their race or religion. As it is, we can only hope that some time we will become Jewish enough or Christian enough to practice the tenets of our respective religions to have at least a wee bit of human understanding. But legislation cannot take out prejudices.

Steve Washer, New Lenox, Dies at 57

Steve Washer, 57, of Cedar Road, New Lenox, superintendent of the Joliet Wrought Washer company since 1923, died March 24 at his home following a lingering illness.

A native of Calumet, Mich., Mr. Washer lived in New Lenox the past 10 years. Prior to that he lived in Joliet 23 years.

He was superintendent of the Joliet firm for the past 25 years.

Surviving are his wife, Stella; two sons, Edward and Eugene; a sister, Mrs. Adam Wozniok, of Thornton; three brothers, Frank, Matthew, and Casimir, all of Hammond, Ind., and a grandchild.

The funeral was held Saturday at 10:30 a. m. from the Gerald S. Dames funeral home to St. Jude's church, New Lenox, for services at 11 a. m. Burial was in Mount Olivet cemetery, Joliet.

A LONG WAIT

"In the year 1348, the world was swept by a horrible plague—now known as 'Black Death.' But it's an interesting fact and almost inconceivable to us that it took them until 1376, or all of 528 years, to discover what caused this dreadful scourge. Just think of it—over half the people of Europe died in three years! Yet they didn't know what caused it."—Holland Engle on WGN's "Interesting Facts."

Do you know all about the proposed reorganization of school districts as proposed by the Will county school survey committee? Probably not. That's why there will be a meeting in Frankfort school gymnasium next Monday evening, April 5, at 8 o'clock. It has not been announced who the speakers will be, but it is considered likely that Louis F. Bottino, Will county superintendent of schools, will speak and explain in detail the views of those favoring the program.

Questions will be in order, as illustrated at a meeting some time ago before the Frankfort Lions club, when Mr. Bottino invited interruptions and frankly answered all questions.

The Mokena meeting will be at 8 o'clock the next evening in the Mokena school gymnasium.

According to reports from various parts of the state, many meetings have not been well attended, but members of the survey committee have continuously urged large attendance so the committee's recommendations may be thoroughly explained, so voters may be well-informed on the question ahead of election time.

2 NEW LENOX EXHIBITS AT FLOWER SHOW

Mrs. William Semmler attended the annual luncheon in the Narcissus room of Marshall Field and company, Chicago, Thursday noon, given by the executive committee of the Chicago Flower show for newspaper women and radio press women. Each guest received a beautiful corsage of pink camellia.

Mrs. Raymond Knotts, chairman of the publicity for the show, presided in the program following the luncheon.

Mrs. L. Thorpe, chairman of the show, told in a few minutes how the Garden Clubs of Illinois did not hold the shows during the war years, and now that they are on their own again, they are putting forth great efforts to make this one the best ever held. She expressed satisfaction for the show, in the exhibition hall in the Stevens hotel, describing it as being clean, well lighted and easy to get to.

New Lenox Garden club will have two exhibits in the show. Both will be on flower arrangements. In class II, the chairman is Mrs. Walter P. Houchin, and in class 12 exhibit the chairmen are Mrs. Sheldon Hauke, Mrs. John Spuehler, and Mrs. Walter P. Houchin. Mrs. Grace Scholl is president.

The Garden Club of Illinois exhibition will be held in the Exhibition hall of the Stevens hotel, Chicago, beginning April 2 and ending April 6.

Cliff Raschkes Having Long Southern Visit

The Cliff Raschke family is having a long stay in the South—mostly Florida, according to a card received from the family a few days ago.

Ocean fishing and swimming have taken up some of the time and an airplane trip to Cuba was on the schedule for this week.

The family expects to return home about the first of May.

Advice for Veterans Starting In Farming

Getting a start in farming is relatively easy for the G. I.—so easy, in fact, that some of them may overlook these essential points:

1. Get a farm big enough to make a living on.
2. Pay no more than it is worth, on the basis of what it will earn over a period of years.
3. Borrow money to invest in land only under favorable terms.
4. A safe way to get started in farming is to rent or buy a good farm in a good farming neighborhood you know. Then you can get the advice of competent farmers on crops and methods.
5. Know what you are doing all the time. Guesswork farming can lose you your shirt.—Farm Journal.

Many a wife has found that hugging her husband is the best way to get around him.

POWERS RUN INTO STORM IN INDIANA

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Powers of Mokena rode into the edge of a tornado last Friday when they motored to Clayton, Ind., to spend the week end with Mrs. Powers' mother. Shortly after arriving in Clayton a heavy rain fell accompanied by high wind and darkness.

Next day Mrs. Powers went to Danville to see her sister, Mrs. Natalie Wheeler, supervisor of county welfare, and there saw the reason for their part of the Friday-afternoon storm. A tornado had cut its capers over a wide area.

A cañon had been set up in the court house, where relief workers were busy all Friday night.

Buildings were destroyed and devastation was widespread.

Mr. and Mrs. Powers returned late Sunday.

The county was blocked to traffic.

Trick Day

If you put salt in your coffee this morning instead of sugar, find knots in your shirt sleeves, or kick an old hat out of your path only to find a brick hidden beneath it—you're an "April Fool."

While All Fools' day is not recognized by any government, it's nevertheless observed in many countries. Besides the many "April Fools" of our own country, there are the English equivalents, known as "noddies, gawbles, gobbies or April gobs," the French "April fish" and the Scottish "April gowks."

This pranksters' holiday has apparently been in existence hundreds of years, for as long ago as 1760, the following lines appeared in "Poor Robin's Almanack."

"The first of April, some do say Is set apart for All Fools' day; But why the people call it so Nor I, nor they themselves do know."

The origin of the custom of playing pranks on the first day of April is as obscure now as in the time of Poor Robin, according to editors of the World Book Encyclopedia, whose research librarians were unable to find an explanation generally agreed upon by experts. The favorite theory of historians, however, is that the custom stems from observance of the spring equinox.

April Fools' Day hasn't been much fun for the officials of Aquariums and zoological gardens. That's the day they're swamped with telephone messages for "Mr. Fish," "Mr. Camel," and "Mr. Bear."

ALFRED L. SPROAT OF MARLEY DIES FROM GUNSHOT WOUNDS

Alfred L. Sproat, 55, of Maple road, near Marley, died Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in Silver Cross hospital, four and a half hours after he was found on his farm with what was called self-inflicted gunshot wounds. He was discovered in the barn by his son, Robert Sproat, University of Chicago student.

The son stated that his father had been despondent for some time. Mr. Sproat was a member of William Martin post No. 725, Mokena. He served overseas in World War I. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sproat. He was a native of Joliet, and had farmed in the Marley area throughout his life.

Surviving are his wife, the former Adell Rowley; the son, Robert; a daughter, Lois; one granddaughter; a brother, Frank, superintendent of the Stateville honor farm; and a sister, Mrs. Ella Haggie Joliet.

Funeral services were held in the Sonntag funeral home Monday afternoon at 2:30, with the Rev. William Bingham of Marley officiating. Interment was in Elmhurst cemetery.

Pelleted Seeds Help Gardeners

If the gardener in your family starts planting what appears to be shot-gun pellets this spring, don't be alarmed. He's probably planting "pelleted" seed, according to Farm Journal.

Pelleted seeds are coated with two or more layers of protective fungicide chemical and plant foods.

The chemicals dissolve when the seeds are planted and the young seedling is assumed of having both food and protection from harmful soil diseases, from the start.

Until now seed pelleting has been done mainly with beets, and to some extent with corn. But this year a Galesburg, Mich., firm has offered pelleted seed of all common vegetables and flowers.

Besides giving the young plants a good send-off, pelleting makes seed easier to handle, and to space properly in rows.

Poisonous Snakes In Many Sections

New York's poisonous snakes are the copperhead, timber rattlesnake, and the Massauga or swamp rattler. This list would apply for all the New England and Middle Atlantic states, also. In the Southeast, look out for the Coral or Harlequin snake, the copperhead, and the pygmy, timber, canebrake, and diamondback rattlers. West of the Mississippi River, you'll find the Texas and Sonoran Coral snakes, the southern and broadbanded copperheads, the water moccasin or cottonmouth, the yellow bellied sea snake, and about 20 different varieties of rattlers.—Farm Journal.

Prophet Among Exiles

Lesson for April 4, 1948

THIS quarter we study the Captivity and Return of the Jews, using the Books of Ezekiel, Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther, Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi. Sunday's lesson is found in Ezekiel 1-4 and 33:1-9.

Dr. Newton

It would be well for us to read again the history of this most interesting man, Ezekiel—how he came to be among the captives by the river Chebar. He is one of the most attractive personalities in the Old Testament—a man of surpassing culture and charm—and yet enabled to "sit where they sat."

A MESSENGER OF GOD

EZEKIEL could never have adapted himself to the role of ministering to the captive slaves apart from the knowledge that he was the messenger of God—the messenger of God's hope to broken, beaten souls.

God spoke to his people through Ezekiel. He speaks to his people today through chosen messengers—parents, teachers, the Bible, the Holy Spirit. God may be speaking to you today.

HEAR YE THE WORD

EZEKIEL'S approach to the Jews in captivity was by the authority of God's direct message to them through him. Ezekiel was faithful to God's appointment and mission. He knew that what he had to say to the Jews meant their hope of release and return.

He studied their plight. He studied their mood. And then he spoke to them. But not only did he speak to them, telling them what God wanted them to know, but he moved among them. He loved them.

He had God's message, and he went in God's mood of compassion. We cannot help people until we understand them and love them.

GOD'S WATCHMAN

EZEKIEL reminded the people that he had been sent from God as a watchman, and he told them what terrible responsibility was upon him in warning them to repent and return unto God. Read Ezekiel 33:1-9.

If the watchman faithfully warns the people, and they refuse to heed the warning, their blood will not be on his hands; but if he fails to warn the people, their blood will be on his hands. Here is a lesson for every teacher and preacher and parent today.

And in this same 33rd chapter, Ezekiel goes on to declare God's attitude toward all sinners. "Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live—turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die?"

A WATCHMAN UNTO EXILES

"SON of man, I have made thee a watchman unto the house of Israel," Ezekiel 3:17.

This was the explicit commission of God to Ezekiel. And grandly did Ezekiel accept and execute to the limit of his ability that commission.

The Jews were far from their beloved home. They were driven by hard masters. They could not sing the song of the Lord in a strange land. They had hanged their harps on the willow trees.

With a sensitive soul, Ezekiel comes to them with the word of hope. He reminds them of the goodness and mercy of Jehovah to their fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. He lifts their drooping spirits with clear and ringing words of promise. He pleads with them to confess their sins and claim the pardoning mercy of a loving God.

He used numerous means of gaining their attention—symbols of their former communion with God. Patiently he traced the dealings of God with them and their fathers before them.

They listened, and all who heeded the pleas of the faithful watchman were saved and restored to faith in the goodness and mercy of God.

We, too, are watchmen among exiles. Let us learn the high art of Ezekiel in our ministry as watchmen.

The churches will fail if the lessons of Sunday are forgotten on Monday and are laid aside for special observance on only one day of the week.—Wayne Morse, U. S. senator from Oregon.

MEDICAL SOCIETY TELLS ABOUT CANCER AND HOW CARE HELPS

Statistics show that 175,000 persons die each year from cancer, a figure that could be reduced materially if you would assist doctors in the fight against the disease. While the cause is not yet known, cancer can often be cured if found in the early stages. It is this early detection that will reduce the mortality from the disease, if every one helps, the educational committee of the Illinois State Medical Society emphasizes in a "health talk."

Participation calls first for two things: knowledge and courage. These two principles will take the patient to the doctor for a regular physical examination. Knowledge and awareness of the disease will help the search for symptoms. Courage will give wise curiosity necessary not only to know out to do something about a condition which may mar the state of your health and likely take your life.

Even though the cause of cancer is not known, medical efforts have shown three possible curative procedures: surgery, x-ray, and radium.

There are seven clues or danger signals to the presence of cancer: any sore that does not heal, a lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere, unusual bleeding or discharge, any change in a wart or mole, persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing, persistent hoarseness or cough, and any change in normal bowel habits.

With an understanding of cancer, the knowledge becomes a personal thing. A normal cell in the body, through some unknown action, becomes a cancer cell. The cancer cell splits and becomes two cancer cells—and so on until the disease, if permitted to go on undetected and uncured, spreads into different sections of the body. It is the innocent specter of the disease in the initial stages that is so dangerous. Cancer attacks quietly. Outside the tell-tale "danger signals," no pain is felt. It is only when cell after cell has been affected, resulting in metastases or spreading and destruction of tissue, that pain is a complaint.

Cancer does not favor sex. Exclusive of cancer of the breast, which takes the lives of some 15,000 women annually, more men die of cancer than women.

Children are not immune, because one-and-a-half per cent of all cancer deaths are in the age group from birth to 14 years. An annual physical examination by your family doctor is advised as a check for precancerous lesions. Your interest in your own self preservation should convince you of the need. In cancer, particularly, this one desire should send women over 35 to her doctor for a check-up at least twice a year. Every three minutes some one dies of cancer. That is why trust in your doctor is important. You know that cancer kills, but it need not reach this tragic end for you or your family if you realize its danger and recognize its symptoms. Have a physical examination. Let your doctor check every possibility for the presence of the disease. Let him look for cancer. Then trust him. If he finds the disease in the early stages, it can be cured. If you have cancer, don't be like the ostrich who hides his head in the sand—face the knowledge with the hope and optimism that the disease can be cured. As laboratory research explores new avenues of approach into the cause of cancer, you can play your part. Watch for the "danger signals." Be suspicious but not afraid. Let your doctor decide. The condition may not be cancer at all. But if it is and found early, better is your chance to live a long and useful life.

Woman's World

Check for Special Qualities Before Purchasing Fabrics

By Ertta Haley

EVERY woman who does any sewing of clothes at home has to have a lot of information at hand when she buys fabrics. It's easy to decide about the color, but it's somewhat more difficult to judge color fastness, serviceability, durability and finish.

Fortunately many fabrics now are labeled as to their various characteristics, and that is a valuable service. It's hard to judge certain things merely by seeing.

Price is not a guide to quality, for these special attributes which you look for, are hidden in the construction, dyeing and finish. Look for the label first, or ask the salesperson if you want something specific answered.

Most good textile manufacturers have testing laboratories which furnish the information given you on labels. These are scientifically proved facts and you can rely on them as the manufacturer wants you to treat the material accordingly for best wear.

Choose Washable Material To Avoid Dry Cleaning

There are certain garments which soil easily and which will have to be laundered frequently. Wouldn't it be impractical to choose a fabric which is labeled "dry clean only" if you are using the dress constantly and whose cleaning bills would put the budget out of kilter?

Children's clothing for everyday use, men's shirts, lingerie and drapery materials preferably should be washable.

If you greatly desire a fabric with a particularly dramatic weave, color or finish and find it dry cleans only, then make it up into a garment which you will wear less frequently.

Firm Weave Is Sign Of Good Quality

There's one rule which applies to the purchase of every fabric whether it is ready-made or by-the-yard. No matter what the weave or what the purpose for the fabric, it should have a firm weave. Closely woven fabrics keep their shape better and give longer wear. They have less tendency to shrink and pull at the seams.

Even if the fabric has an open weave, see that it is firm. If it is open too much, it's apt to be sleazy before you get the garment put together.

Judge the firmness by holding the material to light. If the yarns are evenly spaced, this is a good sign. If you can pull the yarns apart easily and shift them around, there will be danger of pulling at the seams.

And firm weaves for wearability.

seams, or of the fabric becoming puffy.

Sometimes you can judge firmness by the way the material frays. An easily fraying material is apt to be rather loose, and you will have to put a special finish on the seams to keep it from pulling apart.

Some Weaves Resist Soiling and Wrinkling

When a fabric is smooth and glossy, it is less apt to soil. Rayon satin, taffeta and moire will soil less than the mossy crepes or nubby weaves. Or, if you are interested in sporting dresses, select sharkskin in preference to twill, for example. In suit fabrics, the regular suiting material keeps clean better than tweed.

In dresses, the knitted fabrics tend to resist both soiling and wrinkling.

If you are buying knitted fabrics for underwear check to see if the garment is run-resistant or run-proof. Run-proof means that the stitches are locked and cannot run at all, while run-resistant means that the garment can run only in one direction.

For dress-up clothes, satins as well as variations of satin crepe, velvet and chiffon will give the proper note of luxuriousness you wish to achieve. These fabrics also have excellent draping qualities and rich, true colors that will set you off properly.

Head Interest

The romantic roses which bedeck Cyrille Mills' pillbox of moss green nylon tulle show the trend of hats to have side interest. The handmade silk roses range from the palest pink to fuchsia.

Very crepey crepes with mossy or pebbly effects also are good for more formal dress.

All of these materials are to be avoided, however, if you are looking for washability. In the case of the pebbly-woven crepe, for instance, highly twisted yarns must be used to get that effect, and you can understand why this would not stand washing.

Special Finishes Give Extra Service

If you are looking for crispness in material, such as organdie, ask if it is permanent. Will it last through washing or dry cleaning?

Some finishes stabilize shrinkage, and this is important if you are making a garment that is rather fitted.

There is no such thing as a crease-proof finish, but there are some fabrics which are crease-resistant and this is a big help. It will tend to wrinkle less readily, and most of the time, the wrinkles will fall out when the fabric is hung up for a few hours.

Water-repellant finishes are important on children's clothing such as sports' jackets, raincoats and outdoor wear. Some of these are durable finishes and last through several washings or cleanings. Others can be re-applied by the dry cleaner.

If you want a watered effect in a fabric such as moire, you'll find that steam or water will destroy it. In this case, avoid water spotting or steam pressing.

If you want to be certain of a permanent moire finish, ask for acetate moire. This will not be destroyed in pressing or water spotting.

Most fabrics now are made of fast colors, but it's always wise to check this either by label or otherwise. If you cannot find out, wash a small piece of fabric before it is sewed to find out definitely.

PLAIN OR FANCY

What is smarter than a smart cotton dress, even if you are wearing it informally at home? You'll like poplin, especially for its excellent texture and easy launderability. If you want to fancy up the cottons, then you'll like the idea of adding quilting to the jacket of a new, long skirt.

COLORFUL WARDROBE

Gay, clear colors are good this season, and they do wonderful things for the wardrobe as well as the wearer. These look well under furs as well as untrimmed coats.

Be Smart!

Dream amid a pretty froth of lace, achieved by the new adaptation of the Gibson girl style to nighties. In the fine handmadef, the daintiest hand embroidery often is combined with fine lace—others depend on lace alone. Long or short sleeves are used, according to your taste.

YUM-YUM EGGS

Fresh eggs carry a more thrifty price tag as spring advances. There are ways aplenty to serve them, but scrambled eggs can be counted on to please, provided they are prepared with a bit of care and imagination.

There are several schools of egg scramblers, but there is only one general rule to follow, according to Miss Grace Armstrong, nutritionist, University of Illinois College of Agriculture: Don't overcook them.

Remove them from the heat just before the last drop of liquid has begun to solidify, and let them finish cooking from the heat in the skillet. Eggs, like cheese respond rapidly to a very small amount of heat, and the margin between an egg dish properly cooked and one that is overcooked is very slim.

Scrambled eggs can be varied to suit the taste of family or guests. Diced bacon, ham, or chipped beef sauted in the butter just before the eggs are added gives a delicious flavor and a pleasing texture. A dash of tomato sauce or catsup folded into the egg mixture ahead of the cooking time gives it special zest and tang.

If you favor the use of herbs, try your own combinations for scrambled eggs with herbs. A mixture of basil, marjoram, and sage is good—provided a light hand is used. The flavor of the herbs should enhance, not dominate, the dish.

Chopped chives and chopped parsley make a delightful combination. One teaspoon of each for four servings of eggs is a good proportion to use. For superflavor, sprinkle the scrambled eggs with a bit of grated cheese just before you send them to the table.

TODAY'S RECIPE

MERINGUE

- 3 egg whites
- 1-4 teaspoon salt
- 1-4 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1-2 teaspoon vanilla
- 3 tablespoons sugar

Beat egg whites until bubbly, add salt and flavoring. Continue beating until egg whites form a thick foam. Add sugar a tablespoon at a time, beating after each addition. After last addition of sugar, beat until mixture stands in peaks and sugar is dissolved. Spread a small amount of meringue around edge of pie shell, allowing no space between edge of meringue and pastry. Pile remainder on center of filling and spread to meet meringue at edge. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 12 minutes.

WRING FLAT,
MAKE CLOTHES
LAST LONGER

Running clothes through the wringer in a lump is hard on both clothes and wringer. Your clothes and your wringer will last longer if you fold the clothes smoothly before putting them through the wringer.

This is just one of the tips on clothes wringing offered by Miss Gladys Ward of the homemaking staff, University of Illinois college of agriculture.

Another suggestion is to fold small buttons or other fastenings under a layer of the fabric. This prevents them from coming into direct contact with the rolls. Belts and sashes, too, should catch in the rolls.

Large buttons or buckles should not be folded under so that they do not catch in the rolls. It is best to wring by hand garments with heavy buttons or buckles.

Sometimes small articles like handkerchiefs stick to one roll and are turned over and over. You can avoid this by folding them inside a towel or other large piece before wringing.

Miss Ward says it's best to let the machine wring at its own pace. If you try to hurry the job by pulling or forcing pieces through, the wringer mechanism will be damaged.

When your laundry is finished, release the pressure on the wringer so that the rolls separate. If they are left pressed together, flat places will form which make for incomplete wringing. The rolls should be wiped dry after use. If they are stained by colored clothes, they should be washed and dried.

Never allow grease or oil to get on the rolls. Contact with grease or oil will cause the rubber to rot.

How To Keep Tools
In Good Condition

Farm tools should be wiped clean after use and before they are put away. Keep edged tools sharp. Frequently they are dulled by carelessness in storing them, such as throwing wood chisels into a box together, putting auger bits in the box with heavy wrenches, and so on. To prevent rusting, wipe tools after use with a soft rag containing a few drops of light oil.—Farm Journal.

FARMHOUSE PLANNING IN BOOKLET

"A guide to farmhouse planning—the things that need thinking through before you start your improvement program" is the central idea in a new circular from the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

The first step toward better farm housing is good planning, according to the authors of the publication, and the key to good planning is personal planning that begins long before detailed drawings can be made or remodeling started.

Written as a planning guide rather than as a book of plans, the new 48-page illustrated circular takes up farmhouse problems step by step. It not only lists housing needs and points out solutions, but also suggests other planning helps.

Most attention is given to the everyday problems of planning the house to make it ideal for farm family living. Factors to consider in planning the kitchen, living and bedrooms, bath, basement, and closets are discussed. The circular also includes a check list of accident and fire hazards.

Authors of the circular are Deane G. Carter and Keith Hinchcliff of the University of Illinois and Olevia C. Meyer, extension specialist at Michigan State college.

Regional Publication No. 8, "When you build or Remodel Your Farmhouse," was published in cooperation with 14 states in the North Central region and the U. S. department of agriculture. In Illinois, a free copy may be obtained from your county farm adviser or by sending a request to the College of Agriculture, Urbana, Illinois.

FAT SAVING CALLED BIG WORLD NEED

World supplies of fats and oils are still far short of needs. Our supplies here at home, tied very closely to the world situation, will continue to reflect this shortage, according to the United States department of agriculture.

Under these circumstances it obviously "makes sense" to continue to salvage every drop of waste fat in home kitchens. It's good economy, too, so far as the family pocketbook is concerned, since meat dealers pay well for every pound turned in, according to the College of agriculture, University of Illinois.

During the five and one-half years of the fat salvage program—August, 1942, through January, 1948—American homemakers turned in 670 million pounds of waste fats which they had collected in their home kitchens. Last year this drop-by-drop household salvage ran to more than 114 million pounds—nearly 10 million pounds every month.

Some women think of saving used kitchen fats only when they have a surplus—for instance, when they fry bacon. But all meats have some fat. Bones and table scraps will yield a surprising amount when they are heated.

Today the worldwide shortage of fats and oils is still acute, and indications are that the situation will continue for many months—perhaps even years. As a result, the all-out fat salvage program is being kept in operation. Waste fats from home kitchens—saved drop by drop—will count mightily, just as they did during the war years.

Scientists have found that almost all fats, which have approximately a 25 percent sugar content, can be converted into crude molasses for livestock.
